Dear members,

As magazine publishers, editors, writers, designers, and industry professionals, you know better than anyone the challenges and opportunities facing our industry. But it's your work that continues to inspire — from launching new publications to keeping long-running titles relevant in a rapidly changing media landscape.

As co-chair, and with more than two decades working in publishing — including my current role as editor-in-chief and publisher of RANGE Magazine — I've seen firsthand how important it is for us to stand together to support and amplify the storytellers in our communities.

Over the past year, MagsBC has focused on strengthening outreach and ensuring our members' voices are heard — not just across BC, but in discussions with funders, policymakers, and the broader public. Highlights include government advocacy meetings, new industry partnerships, and professional development initiatives like our Non-Traditional Newsstands program, which increases visibility for member magazines throughout the province.

In a fast-moving media environment, our goal remains clear: support magazine creators in adapting, innovating, and thriving. Whether that means helping launch a new title, strengthening an established publication, or expanding professional skills, MagsBC is here to ensure this sector has the resources it needs.

Looking back on 2024–25, I'm proud of what we've accomplished together. And looking forward, I'm confident we'll continue to build a stronger, more connected, and more sustainable magazine industry in BC.

As in past years, MagsBC had an exhibitor's booth at Word, showcasing our member magazines and offering a prize draw to people who filled out a ballot choosing the magazine they wanted to be subscribed to, whether print or digital. Several of our member magazines also displayed and sold copies as exhibitors.

Word Vancouver and the Magazine Association of BC presented a panel on Pitching the Pitch on Saturday. They had a full house, needing people to bring chairs into the room to sit down.

The organizer and moderator was former MagsBC president Jessica Key who is the managing editor at subTerrain, with panelists Jesse Donaldson, author, historian, journalist, Dayna Mahannah, editor-in-chief, Geist, and Sara Harowitz. editor-in-chief, The Georgia Straight, all contributing thoughtful and useful advice.

Magazines West

The first in-person conference since 2019, MagsWest 2024 was held at the VSO School of Music in Vancouver. Although small, with a total of 80 attendees including speakers, staff, sponsors, and volunteers, many felt the programme organized by consultant Joyce Byrne to be terrific.

In the morning keynote sessions, Grist Executive Editor Katherine Bagley talked about reader-supported journalism, The Globe and Mail Standards Editor Sandra E. Martin covered AI and journalism, and Byline Creative Director and Bloomberg Businessweek Art Director Madeline Montoya encouraged us to reimagine online magazines using Byline as an example.

In the afternoon, we learned about tech tools for writers and editors from Omar Mouallem, author, filmmaker, educator, contributing editor, and journalist, The Guardian, WIRED, and Maclean's, strategic planning and revitalizing your magazine from publishing consultant Sharon McAuley, ethical fact-checking with Allison Baker and Viviane Fairbank, the Truth in Journalism Project, how small/cultural magazines can find and keep readers with Literary Review of Canada publisher and circulation consultant Eithne McCredie, and what's working for indie publishers from panelists Jeanette Ageson, The Tyee, Eden Fineday, IndigiNews, and Kim Werker, Digits & Threads, and moderator Jessie Johnston, Asparagus Magazine.

Some registrants also attended our networking breakfast and after-conference social, or signed up for a half-hour oneon-one professional consultation (which we'll make longer next time) with Eithne, Sharon, or Omar. Thanks to all funders, sponsors, donors and volunteers for their support, as well as our staff and contractors for all their hard work. We hope to offer another conference in 2026.

Advocacy

On a federal level, executive director Sylvia Skene continued to work with the Canadian Magazine Coalition on various advocacy and lobbying initiatives, including CPF's Special Measures for Journalism funding, meeting with various bureaucrats and representatives from organizations such as the Canadian Journalism Collective, and inviting MPs and senators and participating in the 2024 Magazines on the Hill event in Ottawa on October 29.

Provincially, MagsBC Board Co-chair Glenn Alderson and Sylvia attended a meeting January 8, 2025 with then Tourism, Arts, Culture and Sport Minister Spencer Chandra Herbert, Nina Krieger, Parliamentary Secretary for Arts and Film, Ellora Sundhu, Chief of Staff for the Minister, Amy Schneider, Executive Director, Creative Sector Branch, TACS, and Silas Brownsey, Deputy Minister, TACS to update them with the current issues in our sector, and Sylvia had other meetings with provincial contacts over the past year, as well as with Minister Chandra Herbert and his team on April 17 during Creative Industries Week.

After MagsBC's application to the BC government was approved, December 1 was declared as BC Magazine Day 2024. Non-traditional newsstands at multiple performing arts venues displayed a sign announcing BC Magazine Day and promoting a subscription draw.

As we have for many years, MagsBC participated in the 2025 BC Book Day April 15 and the Creative Industries Week Showcase and 10th Anniversary Red Carpet Event April 16 at the BC Legislature in Victoria, showcasing our member magazines and talking with MLAs, aides, staff, creative industries representatives, and others. We are very grateful to Books BC and Screen BC for organizing these events, with the support and participation of Music BC, DigiBC, Knowledge Network, IATSE, Creative BC, DGC (Directors Guild of Canada), CMPA (Canadian Media Producers Association), and others.

Internship Subsidy Program

Shristi Uprety, the new MagsBC internship coordinator, awarded subsidies for 14 internships and 4 internship extensions in 2024-2025.

Member magazines BAZOOF!, Here Magazine, Island Parent, NatureWILD, the Pacific Rim Review of Books, Portal, PULP Literature, RANGE Magazine, Roam Media (Comox Valley Collective and Strathcona Collective magazines), Seekers Media (FestivalSeekers, SnowSeekers, and ZenSeekers magazines), TAKE 5 and WordWorks and affiliate member magazine La Scena Musicale participated in this program.

All interns in this intake who responded to our survey found their education and skills were used to good effect and were also challenged to do more. All supervisors found their experience working with their intern to be valuable or very valuable.

Supervisors also rated the most important key qualities in an intern to be strong interpersonal skills e.g. listens well, works well with a variety of people, and is respectful, patient, and easygoing, followed by a strong work ethic and skills e.g. is organized, mature, dependable, and responsible, has integrity, meets deadlines, and manages time well.

MagsBC again generously received subsidy funding from the Canada Periodical Fund for 2025/26, and all 12 internship subsidies were allocated by August.

Changing Duties of Interns 2023-25

MagsBC interns say:

"It was fabulous. I have learned and continue to learn so much from everyone there. It has also turned into a job and that was very worthwhile. A career in journalism is now of interest to me."

– Francesca Pacchiano

"I am beyond grateful to MagsBC and La Scena Musicale for this opportunity because it allowed me to break into the publishing industry and learn skills that will benefit me immediately. My work with WordPress, building an online presence, improving SEO, writing and editing articles, etc. are all things that will be useful in my career moving forward and bolster my resume as I look for new jobs."

— Kaitlyn Chan

"I worked with different team members from different areas, publishing, editing, sales, production, etc. and got different perspectives. The team was supportive and guided me while also giving me the space to make recommendations and try new things. The internship led to an ongoing job opportunity so I would consider that a success!"

- Allie McFarlane

"The team was super helpful, very informative, and had many things to offer that I could work on. The magazine has a lot of potential to grow and change, which is great for someone wanting to learn and also feel like they are contributing."

— Nina Mosallaei

and supervisors say:

"I greatly appreciate this program and over the years have built up the training so that I can accommodate interns easier and with more organization. The interns are able to contribute a great deal of value to our work in the industry."

- TeLeni Orr-Koochin

"Our internship experiences and those with the internship subsidy program have always been exemplary."

— Fiona

Non-Traditional Newsstands

The Non-Traditional Newsstands Pilot Project was a new initiative from the Magazine Association of BC aimed to reach new, diverse, and engaged audiences for BC-made magazines by establishing free magazine newsstands and pop-up shops in venues like theatre lobbies and festival sites.

The goal of the project was to broaden access and increase interest in our member magazines by establishing a presence in new spaces and testing alternative distribution channels for BC magazines, focusing initially on the abundance of theatres, performing arts venues, and festivals in the Metro Vancouver area.

Originally started in 2023 by Allyson Mc-Grane, co-leads Sun Woo Baik and Aniana Domínguez took over in May 2024, assisted by Asparagus Magazine publisher and stockist Jessie Johnston.

From May 2024 to March 2025, the team worked with MagsBC members to source magazines both old and new, and partnered with venues across the Lower Mainland to offer racks of free magazines and give away and sell magazines through pop-up shops.

The team also produced 300 copies of a booklet promoting our digital magazine

members and distributed them on each free newsstand.

All members who participated in the feedback survey would recommend participating in a future newsstands project to other MagsBC member magazines.

"[T]his opportunity was a great way to share more literary arts and local publications with our arts-savvy audience. It's also great that we can support this project and local creators with very little effort on our end, thanks to their organized and friendly team."

Key Findings

1. Local Nature of Magazines

 Highlighting that the magazines are BC-made was a major draw. Audiences at all venues were interested in learning more about local content.

2. Three Key Reader Motivations

- Learning about locally made magazines. Most attendees were unfamiliar with MagsBC or the magazines involved
- Accessing fact-checked content.
- Finding material to practice English language skills.

"What I especially appreciate is seeing museum attendees sitting down and reading these works at the end of their gallery visits—this shows how the project deepens visitor engage ment."

Jasper Berehulke
 Coordinator of Indigenous Programming
 and Community Engagement,
 Museum of Vancouver

3. Theatre Partnerships

- Theatres attract an audience already interested in cultural and local content
- We could anticipate the type of audience based on the show to make a more effective business decision of whether to participate.
- Show schedules (start, intermission, end) and season calendars allowed for efficient sales pop-up planning.
- Partnering with theatres provided a predictable audience size and type, making pop-up planning easier.
- We found that contacting theatres was more feasible than contacting festivals due to being more permanent, with year-round programming.

4. Concessions vs. Sales Pop-ups

 Concessions don't generate the same results as sales pop-ups. People connect more when staff describe what's being sold.

5. Giveaways & Bundles

- These strategies effectively introduced magazines to local theatre audiences, boosting outreach and promoting MagsBC and member magazines.
- Many attendees hadn't heard of the magazines but were interested and excited to see local publishing. However, they needed to familiarize themselves with the content before taking the step to buy or subscribe.

Post-Project Free Newsstands

The team is working with participating print member magazines on pilot 2 of this project, which will focus on free newsstands at cafes, museums, and journalism, writing, and related programs at post-secondary institutions.

The team already has a newsstand at the Museum of Vancouver, which is proving very popular with visitors. Additionally, Evergreen Cultural Centre, Massey Theatre, and Studio 58 have agreed to keep our newsstands as they have proven popular.

Participating Venues

Evergreen Cultural Centre (Coquitlam) Massey Theatre (New Westminster) Presentation House Theatre (N. Vancouver) The Dance Centre, Langara College Studio 58, Vancouver Writers Fest, Vines Den (Vancouver)

Results

Sales and subscriptions resulting from this pilot project were very modest, more sold via discount bundles, especially holiday and Valentine's Day bundles, than individual sales. As well, although all copies of the digital magazine booklet were taken, there was no measurable increase in traffic to participating digital member magazines.

By contrast, people picked up a total of 1,654 member magazines through the free racks and pop-ups.

Inside BC's Magazine Publishing Sector

Released July 31, 2025, MagsBC's new report on BC's magazine publishing sector by Deetken Insight provides an evidence-based snapshot of industry structure, economic activity, cultural impacts, and changing business dynamics.

Highlights

• Strengthening the sector:

Continued skilling up through Mags-BC-delivered knowledge and other programs are critical for publishers to scale up businesses that can preserve their magazines' cultural and economic value

• Collective solutions:

Initiatives that support industry-wide collaborative and collective action is needed to address common financial challenges. One recommendation, for example, was to examine the feasibility of coordinating provincial and national group ad selling to give BC's magazine publishers access to the economies of scale.

• Export and collaboration potential:

Data from BC Statistics indicators and Destination BC show a healthy post-pandemic rebound in revenue, visitation, and Indigenous-led tourism experiences. This loca l interest could generate more partnerships with local businesses and tourism partners.

Magazine Association of BC Notes to the Financial Statements For the Year Ended December 31, 2024

Note 1. PURPOSE OF THE ORGANIZATION

Magazine Association of BC (MagsBC) was founded in 1993 as a not-for-profit association of member magazines and professionals working to unite, promote and strengthen the province's magazine industry

Note 2. SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Basis of presentation

The Society prepares its financial statements in accordance with Canadian accounting standards for not-for-profit organizations (ASNPO). The unrestricted net balance accounts for the society's program delivery and administrative activities.

Non-cash donations

Contributions of assets, supplies and services that would otherwise have been purchases are recorded at fair value at the date of contribution, provided a fair value can be reasonably determined.

The Society depreciates its capital assets over their estimated useful lives as follows:

Computer Equipment	45% Declining Balance
Office Equipment	20% Declining Balance

Magazine Association of BC Notes to the Financial Statements For the Year Ended March 31, 2025

Note 1. PURPOSE OF THE ORGANIZATION

Magazine Association of BC (MagsBC) was founded in 1993 as a not-for-profit association of member magazines and professionals working to unite, promote and strengthen the province's magazine industry

Note 2. SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Basis of presentation

The Society prepares its financial statements in accordance with Canadian accounting standards for not-for-profit organizations (ASNPO). The unrestricted net balance accounts for the society's program delivery and administrative activities.

Revenue recognition

The Society follows the deferral method of accounting for contributions. Restricted contributions related to general operations are recognized as revenue in the year in which the related expenses are incurred. Unrestricted contributions are recognized as revenue when received or receivable if the amount to be received can be reasonable estimated and collections is reasonably assured.

Non-cash donations

Contributions of assets, supplies and services that would otherwise have been purchases are recorded at fair value at the date of contribution, provided a fair value can be reasonably determined.

Depreciation

The Society depreciates its capital assets over their estimated useful lives as follows:

Computer Equipment	45% Declining Balance
Office Equipment	20% Declining Balance

Note 3. DEFERRED REVENUE

Creative BC - CrBC PS 2425	10,062
Membership dues	643
Total	10,705

Note 4. Change of Fiscal Year

In order to better align the operations of MagsBC with their funders, the board has approved changing the fiscal year of the organization from calendar year to a March 31st year end. These financial statements recognize the three month stump period from January to March 2025.
